

MEMORANDUM

To: Dean Herman Saatkamp
School of Liberal Arts

From: David Bodenhamer
Director

Date: September 10, 1998

Subject: FY 1998 Annual Report

The Polis Center enjoyed a good year in FY 1998, as evidenced by its activities and accomplishments:

- 18 new awards, totaling $4,014,314
- 24 presentations to national, state, regional, and local conferences and workshops
- Over 51 references/appearances in local and national print (40) and electronic (11) media, and creation of @ Polis as a monthly staff newsletter (8 issues)
- 10 new full-time staff, 7 of which are new positions
- Publication of two nationally distributed books and an internationally distributed video series

We currently employ almost forty full-time professional and support staff in four departments—research, community affairs, advanced information technology, and administration. Over 72 students from 18 departments in 20 universities have worked as paid or unpaid interns in our various projects. We further expect to hire an additional five full-time professional and support positions by the end of FY 1999. An organizational chart outlining current and anticipated positions accompanies this report.

Now entering our tenth year as a self-supported unit of the School of Liberal Arts, we have over 17 active projects with total budgets exceeding $10 million. Notably, these awards come from a variety of sources in line with our long-standing practice of seeking a diversified funding stream. With a major award of $3.5 million in July 1998, after the close of the reporting period, our nine-year total includes almost 200 projects with income of approximately $20 million. Awards anticipated in FY 1999 will increase this total by $2 to $6 million or more. A list of projects accompanies this report.

Over the past twelve months, we have established and maintained relationships with over 684 organizations, agencies, and groups in the Indianapolis MSA and beyond. By sector, these relationships include 200 governmental, 350 civic and not-for-profit, 61 corporate, and 73 academic. In addition to state and local scholars, we had significant interaction with researchers from University of Chicago, University of Southern California, University of Pennsylvania, University of Houston, University of Illinois-Chicago, among more than a score of universities elsewhere. An abbreviated list of these relationships accompanies this report.

Two significant issues confront us in the coming year—the need to move to new space outside of Cavanaugh Hall to house our growing staff and the need to adopt a strategic plan and new organizational structure for our next five years of growth. Work on both of these issues began in FY 1998, and we expect resolution on both during FY 1999. We currently occupy approximately 4,000 sq. ft. in Cavanaugh, which according to university norms makes us one of the most crowded units in the IU system. We expect to double our space at an annual expense to us of $100,000 or more, plus one-time moving costs of up to $50,000. The reorganization will not exact the same financial penalty; its costs, while necessary, will be counted in terms of time, energy, and emotion. Other pressing issues include acquisition of new technology (a perennial item), completion of our restructured internal budgeting system and of our internal data access system, and development and/or redesign of our Center and project brochures, newsletters, and other public relations materials.

97-98 Polis Center Projects

New Awards:

Archives Consultation and Re-Organization for the Children's Bureau $2,000.00

Children's Bureau of Indianapolis

Polis organized and documented the corporate records of a 100 year old social service agency in preparation for a centennial history and celebration in 1998.

Demographic Profile and Student Enrollment Projections for the Eastern Howard School Corporation $9,500.00

Eastern Howard School Corporation

Polis prepared a demographic profile of the school district and developed a 5-year student enrollment projection by grade. Analysis of the results of both the demographics and enrollment projections offered information to help district officials fulfill future school district growth needs.

Enrollment Projections for the Metropolitan School District of Franklin Township $35,000.00

Franklin Township Metropolitan School District

Polis is providing a set of enrollment projections to be used for facility and program planning in the Franklin Township school system. Franklin Township is a rapidly changing area and our work will help the community make better decisions regarding capital and facility needs.

Faith-Based Programs for Community Youth in Indianapolis $66,935.00

Lilly Endowment Inc.

Polis provided contextual research on the existence of faith-based outreach programs for youth and worked with consultant Nancy Silvers-Rogers to conduct assessments of programs and interviews with selected program administrators.

Formative Evaluation for the Front Porch Alliance Initiative Indicators $30,360.00

City of Indianapolis

Polis is conducting a formative evaluation of the Front Porch Alliance, an initiative by the Mayor to link religious and community organizations with the city for purposes of neighborhood improvement. Project staff track the progress of the various initiatives by measuring a set of program and social indicators in neighborhoods where the program is functioning.

Geographic Information Systems Consulting Services to DowElanco $14,075.00

DowElanco

Polis determined how to most accurately use DowElanco's global positioning satellite (GPS) and field survey data to geo-reference test plots and sample locations, and developed a process for translating DowElanco's discreet spatial data sets into a standard GIS format. The resulting GIS tool will allow DowElanco to verify and present model results.

Geographic Information System Needs Assessment for Elkhart and St. Joseph Counties $34,150.00

Michiana Area Council of Governments

The Polis Center worked with Michiana Area Council of Governments to develop an implementation plan for a geographic information system for Elkhart and St. Joseph Counties. Polis also designed a GIS Pilot Study for those counties. MACOG offices can use GIS technology to integrate a wide range of existing information regarding infrastructure and land use for more informed decision making.

Geographic Information System for Gary, Indiana, Community School Corporation $30,000.00

Gary Community School Corporation / Purdue University

Polis collected student record data from the 1995-96 school year as well as selected 1990 census demographic information for the Gary area and provided Gary Community School Corporation with a GIS for its use.

Indianapolis Public School Desegregation Maps $3,500.00

Henderson, Daily, Withrow & Devoe

Polis cooperated with the Indiana Business Research Center to develop a series of maps from census and school district data records to show historic changes in African-American population patterns in relation to changing school districts.

Mapleton-Fall Creek Community Development Corporation Neighborhood Analysis $3,000.00

Mapleton-Fall Creek Development Corporation

Polis staff compiled and interpreted existing local survey data to measure consumption patterns against the availability of goods and services in Mapleton-Fall Creek. Staff also assessed local assets and vulnerabilities and presented this information in one-on-one interviews and focus groups to assist the community in better understanding area economic development strengths and weaknesses.

Religion in the City Roundtable

$8,415.00

The Louisville Institute

Polis staff convened scholars from academic research projects (Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Houston, and Chicago) focusing on various aspects of religion in the city to discuss common research issues.

Religion and Urban Culture Project--Phase III

$3,507,394.00

Lilly Endowment Inc.

This project seeks to nurture public inquiry and civic conversation about the role of religion in the creation and re-creation of urban community in Indianapolis, and, by implication, in other American cities. Staff conduct community-based research and develop educational materials that explore the ways people of faith have acted (or failed to act) to define, sustain, and transform community in the 20th-century city. The project also sponsors several creative arts programs and projects that explore various expressions of religion in today's urban culture.

Socio-Economic Projections for Use with Traffic Analysis for the Department of Metropolitan Development

$25,000.00

Indianapolis Division of Planning

Polis is providing analytical services on transportation planning issues. Work has focused on evaluation of year 2020 socio-economic forecasts.

Spirit and Place: A Gathering of Voices Civic Festival

$57,985.00

23 community partners and a variety of grants

In its third year, Spirit & Place is a citywide, collaborative project that seeks to create opportunities through the arts and humanities for the public to engage in thoughtful reflection on the fundamental values that shape Indianapolis as a city. Polis began the festival as part of its Religion and Urban Culture Project and serves as project manager. The four-day festival features a variety of performances, exhibits, lectures, and public discussions at various locations throughout the city.

Survey of Indianapolis Residents' Attitudes on Parks and Recreation

$38,000.00

Indy Parks

Polis is assisting with the creation and delivery of a local resident survey on parks and recreation issues. Staff are responsible for leading a public participation process and an oversight committee.

Tabernacle Presbyterian Community Recreation Planning and Feasibility Study $30,000.00

Tabernacle Presbyterian Church

Through interviews, review of documentary records, focus groups, and surveys, Polis staff conducted analysis of church programs, congregational and neighborhood attitudes, congregational and neighborhood demographics, neighborhood assets and interactive interpretation with church leaders and congregational members. The resulting information was used to inform the congregation's planning for proposed expanded youth recreation programs and a new facility in partnership with the YMCA of Greater Indianapolis.

Technical Support for the Indianapolis Mapping And Geographic Infrastructure System Consortium $69,000.00

IMAGIS Consortium

The Polis Center provides technical support for updates of specific planimetric basemap data layers including transportation, drainage, and physical structures for the Indianapolis Mapping and Geographic Infrastructure System (IMAGIS) Consortium. Polis is responsible for aerial photography, digital scanning of images, and aerial triangulation.

United Way Indicators Environmental Scan and Needs Assessment $50,000.00

United Way of Central Indiana / Community Service Council

Polis devised a series of social indicators to help the United Way evaluate and track its programs over time. These indicators cover twenty topics and range from teen pregnancy to elderly support to community organizing. Polis research other existing indicators and combined them with a range of available local program data to create appropriate indicators for each topic. Polis then assembled the necessary data and provided a summary profile on each indicator for inclusion in the United Way's report card of community conditions.

Total: $4,014,314.00

Continuing Awards:

Computer Based Cartography for the Historical Atlas of Religion in America (2nd Edition) $22,550.00

Hanover College / Oxford University Press

The Polis Center created approximately 300 national and regional maps for a new edition of the Edwin Scott Gaustad Historical Atlas of Religion in America published by Oxford University Press. This document is a standard reference in American religious history.

Geographic Information System Consulting and Implementation for Wayne County

$2,440,615.00

Board of Commissioners for Wayne County, Indiana

Polis provides project management and oversight for developing a county-wide GIS. In the pilot project phase, staff designed the appropriate database, developed aerial photography, and established ground control measures to support the future county-wide GIS initiative. Now in the implementation phase, staff are responsible for scanning of image negatives, triangulation and digital orthorectification of the scanned imagery for the entire county, and developing the planimetric basemap consisting of transportation, drainage, and main physical structures as well as cadastre datasets.

Home Missionaries on the Indiana Frontier: The Lives of Edmund Otis and Mary Carter Hovey

$12,500.00

Indiana Humanities Council

Project staff are preparing a biographical narrative of the Hoveys that focuses on their roles in the founding and development of Wabash College, their contributions to the emergence of education in Indiana, and the impact of New England education and theological traditions on the Hoosier state.

Teaching the Role of Religion in American History

$20,000.00

Indiana Humanities Council

This project produced a curriculum that outlines issues and events of religious significance in Indianapolis history for use in the social studies classroom as a supplement to existing curriculum. The curriculum is in hardcopy as well as electronic format on the world wide web. It includes narrative and visual aids to discuss several themes.

Total: $2,495,665.00

Awards Completed from Previous Year:

Religion and Urban Culture Project -- Phase II

$2,245,993.00

Lilly Endowment Inc.

This project seeks to nurture public inquiry and civic conversation about the role of religion in the creation and re-creation of urban community in Indianapolis, and, by implication, in other American cities. Staff conduct community-based research and develop educational materials that explore the ways people of faith have acted (or failed to act) to define, sustain, and transform community in the 20th-century city. The project also sponsors several creative arts programs and projects that explore various expressions of religion in today's urban culture.

The Role of Religion in Public Education in Indianapolis

$10,000.00

United Methodist General Board of Global Ministries

Polis conducted local case study of a larger research project looking at the history of religion in the public schools. This research focused on past and current practices and policies concerning the expression of religion and religious issues at North Central High School in Washington Township. Polis staff conducted interviews with administrators, teachers, students, parents, and community leaders to assess their knowledge of and feelings about local school policies and practices and conducted a survey of local residents.

Social Assets and Vulnerabilities Indicators Project (SAVI) -- Phase II

$448,242.00

United Way of Central Indiana - Community Service Council of Central Indiana

Polis has created and managed a comprehensive database of information on the Indianapolis metropolitan area's community assets, service delivery system, demographics, and vulnerabilities. The information in SAVI is linked to census tract and other geographies for display and analysis. Polis staff also participate in its use and support training and the provision of community access sites for the database.
